Matt Dennis's work as an illustrator appears regularly in newspapers and magazines both in Britain and the USA. As a printmaker he has exhibited widely in both group and solo shows. He is currently working on a series of images inspired by The Iliad.

Tom Gauld's comic strip 'Move to the City' appeared in TimeOut, and 'The Writer at Work' was published in The Guardian. He runs Cabanon Press with Simone Lia. Their comics 'First' and 'Second' were recently republished as 'Both' by Bloomsbury.

Malcolm Goldie works as a graphic designer and music producer. His work has been used by a wide range of companies including Diesel, Orange and Nokia. His first solo single 'Michelle Plays Ping Pong' is released in January 2005.

David Lucas is an illustrator and writer. His first book as both author and illustrator, 'Halibut Jackson', was published by Andersen Press in 2003. He is currently working on 'The Lying Carpet', an illustrated fable, for adults and children, to be published in 2005.

Wilfrid Wood has worked as a graphic designer and was, for many years, a head-builder for Spitting Image. His sculptures have been used as illustrations in Cosmopolitan and The Face, and have been frequently exhibited in and around London.
